

ANNOUNCEMENT

Bernd Crasemann Retires

Bernd Crasemann of the University of Oregon is retiring from the senior Editorship of Physical Review A. Bernd has been leading PRA since January of 1992, a full 14 years. During his tenure the journal grew substantially, continued to build its reputation as a leading journal in atomic, molecular, and optical physics, and made the transition to online publication and the electronic editorial system. Bernd has been known for his high standards and inspirational leadership, which leave Physical Review A in its strong position.

Martin Blume
Editor-in-Chief
American Physical Society

Stanley G. Brown
Editorial Director
American Physical Society

ANNOUNCEMENT

Gordon Drake Assumes PRA Editorship

It is a pleasure to announce that Gordon Drake of the University of Windsor, Ontario, Canada, will be taking on the senior Editorship of Physical Review A. Gordon has served on the editorial boards of both PRA and PRL, and as an Associate Editor of PRA, and he has a strong reputation as an accomplished scientist in the field of atomic physics. With his location in Windsor, Gordon will become our second senior journal Editor based (although just barely, in this case) outside the United States. Gordon was recommended from among a number of very distinguished nominees by a search committee chaired by Ron Walsworth of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics.

Martin Blume
Editor-in-Chief
American Physical Society

Stanley G. Brown
Editorial Director
American Physical Society