Missing Characters in the Paper Issues 8, 9, and 10 of Volume 81

The paper issues of 24 August, 31 August, and 7 September 1998 are missing certain characters. There was a failure in electronic processing which did not effect the on-line journal. The missing characters include “perpendicular,” “asterisk,” some symbols used to identify data plotted in figures, and some open font symbols. If you suspect that the Letter you are reading is missing characters, please access the on-line journal to view the complete article with no missing characters.

We are still seeking to determine the full extent of the problem. We believe it is confined to the above three issues and should not be a problem with this or future issues.

We regret the inconvenience for our readers.
